

Royal Observatory, Greenwich,
London, S.E.

1858 Sept. 20

My dear Sir

Seechi writes to me
that he is coming here tomorrow. But I am going to Leeds tomorrow.

Can you convey intimations of that to him? for I do not know where to write.

He had better go to Leeds. I am to return on Saturday. Love, my dear Sir, Yours very truly

G. Peirce

Admiral Bannerman

Royal Observatory, Greenwich
London, E.S.

1858 April 29

My dear Sir

I have been thinking much lately of the various ways in which the sun is conveyed here to us. I am going to send you some very curious specimens of the sun? for I do not know when to write

It is not better to send you the specimens, as they are very valuable

Yours very truly
R. M. W.

